

Columbia University President Bollinger Endorses IE (May, 2012)

Columbia University President Lee C. Bollinger

"Celebrating diversity, interdisciplinary collaboration, and innovation across the entirety of the academic community is essential if universities are to fulfill their fundamental mission of public service. That is the approach embraced by the Intellectual Entrepreneurship consortium. Educators who work with IE are reminded that the role of the university is not simply to teach, but also to serve as an agent for change. The work of the consortium is succeeding in developing citizen-scholars and offers a helpful guide for institutions of higher education seeking to expand partnerships between the academy and society."
